Roz Savage, Ocean Rower

“Stop Drifting, Start Rowing:
One Woman’s Search for
Happiness and Meaning
Alone On the Pacific”

Roz Savage, world-record-setting Ocean Rower and environmental campaigner, will talk about her adventures rowing solo across the world’s oceans-particularly her bid to become the first woman to row solo 8,000 miles across the Pacific.

After a failed attempt in 2007, when her boat capsized 3 times in 24 hours during a storm, she set out again the following year from the Golden Gate Bridge. To a backdrop of photographs, maps and videos, she will tell the story of her epic crossing, and share her insights on happiness, meaning, and the environmental challenges that face our oceans in the 21st century.
